CHICAGO PROTESTS.

A Formal Objection Entered to the Double Games

BOSTON IS IN THE LEAD

Boston Won Two Games Yesterday and Chicago Lost One New York Also — Hart Is Throwing Cold Water on Boston The Story Denied

Chicago Sept 30—In response to numerous urgent solicitations on the part of Captain Anson's friends in Chicago President Hart has at last taken off his coat in the matter of the league pennant. This morning he sent the following telegram to President Nick Young:

Chicago Sept 30
Nicholas Young President National League Washington
I have ascertained from all league presidents that consent was given for double games in Boston on Sept 19 in Pittsburg Sept 26 in Brooklyn Sept 29 and to lay it out properly granted by all the prior to the games the Chicago club in the name of fairness and to restore wavering confidence demands that the games be declared void and be thrown out of the championship table and the decision made public in tomorrow morning's papers. This is a most serious matter and demands your attention.
James A. Hart
President Chicago B. B. Club.

President Young replied as follows

Washington Sept 30
James A. Hart President Chicago Baseball Club
Have no authority to declare any games void. If you file protest the Boston club must be notified and given a chance to present every evidence and the directors must decide. If the request for a meeting of directors will call it not later than Monday if I can secure their attendance.
N. E. Young
President National League

Mr Hart did not like the idea of waiting until Monday for the directors to meet and sent this dispatch to the capital:

Chicago Sept. 30.
Nicholas E. Young President National League Washington
Is it your ruling that protests on games of base ball as far as Chicago is concerned, that the legality of these games be decided by a board of arbitration? Captain wires me he was given permission to play double games in Boston and for you to give the information to the public immediately. We do not want to wait until the close of the season to be decided.
(Signed) Jas. Hart,
President Chicago Base Ball Club.

To this despatch President Young replied as follows

Washington, Sept. 30.
James A. Hart President Chicago Baseball Club
Will obtain the information at the earliest moment, assuming that you enter protest against the games counting in case returns are given.
N. E. Young,
President National League.

President Hart immediately replied formally protesting the double games played in Boston Sept. 19, 23, 29 and 30. His reply was as follows.

Chicago, Sept. 30.
N. E. Young, President National League
We certainly do enter protest against the counting, if they were illegally played. But above all things we desire the decision immediately.
James A. Hart,
President Chicago Baseball Club.

"I am determined," said President Hart, "to find out before the week is out, whether these double games in Boston were legal or not."

President Hart's protest is probably not worth the paper it is written upon. It is necessary for the Boston club to secure the consent of only six of the eight clubs. President D. H. Robinson of the Cleveland club says that he gave his consent to all of the games, and it is very probable that New York, Philadelphia and Brooklyn also gave their consent. President J. P. O'Neil of the Pittsburgs lives out in the country and could not be reached, but it is probable that he too was willing to let Boston have every show.

It is the opinion of hundreds here that the Boston-Brooklyn-Philadelphia-New York games were deliberately thrown, partly because of the dislike that many professional ball players are known to entertain for Anson and partly because the Chicago team is considered the cheapest in the league. Others there are who see in it the avenging hand of the disrupting Brotherhood, which is thus paying off some old scores.

PITTSBURG HEARD FROM.

Pittsburg, Sept. 30—Manager Mutrie said to-night that the two games Pittsburg played with Boston Sept. 12th, were clearly legal, as the officials of the Boston club had secured the required consent before proceeding with them.

BASEBALL

National League
HOME—NEW YORK.

New York, Sept. 30. Boston again won two games to-day making sixteen games won and one a break, and to-night is hilarious with joy because they have a load of eight over Chicago. No matter how much Anson has before him, Boston is living fat of the land and Boston is happy. Boston people take no stock in the stories emanating from Chicago that the New Yorks have been deliberately throwing games to Boston. New York has been putting up the straight game and Boston has been cinching games.

The first game to-day was a walk-over. Welch was hit in the back by a thrown ball and had to retire, Welch taking his place. Score: Boston 16, New York 3.

The second game was close and exciting. Ewan was again in the box for the Giants and pitched a great game, having plenty of speed and good control of the ball. Boston was very fortunate in placing hits, and due to this fact that they finally won the game. The visitors braced up wonderfully and played with much spirit, but it was too late. Score: Boston 5, New York 3.

[illegible] Cleveland had a sure lead cheered every rent the air.

CHICAGO-CLEVELAND

Cleveland Sept 30—It was very evident Anson and his team were nervous today. Errorless they played desperately but miserably throughout. Cleveland, on the other hand, played Chicago at all points and victory by pounding the ball in batting Cleveland made five runs Chicago had succeeded in getting three runs the plate with two men out became too dark to continue the game. The crowd though pleased to see the game, were full of comment for Anson and roundly hissed a [illegible] shouted for the New York club.

Cleveland 12, Chicago 5.

CINCINNATI-PITTSBURG

Cincinnati Sept 30—Cincinnati won to-day by a close score. Score: Cincinnati 7, Pittsburg 1.

BROOKLYN-PHILADELPHIA.

Brooklyn Sept. 30—Brooklyn won two games from Philadelphia to-day, making an all Brooklyn finish in the first game 10 to 9, the second at the start and continued to the like grim death John Clarkson have play continues to excite the admiration of onlookers and players alike. It ended in a disastrous sea in a half-swaying game. Score: First game: Brooklyn 7, Philadelphia 6; second game: Brooklyn 9, Philadelphia 4.

American Association.

Philadelphia—First game: Athletic 11, Louisville 9; second game—Called during the 9th, Louisville 9.

Milwaukee—Called on account of darkness, Boston 10, Louisville 4.

Railway Scores.

Chicago, Sept. 30—Early this morning a collision occurred one mile east of Kent, on the New York, Pennsylvania and Ohio railroad. Second division freight train No. 86 going thirty miles an hour ran into the sixth section of passenger train No. 8 which was making the same time. Three persons were killed outright and twenty-four injured several fatally.

The passenger train was the Mt. Pleasant section of the Ohio family excursion, members of which were going to the national reunion of their kindred at Huntington, W. Va. Many other Michigan people took advantage of the low rates to visit friends in the east. It was a foggy night and the collision occurred on a long, high thirty feet high in the middle of which was a bridge sixty feet long over the Pittsburg and Western tracks. Last of the passenger train was on the bridge when the crash came. The engines plowed into each other and reared high in the air and the cars quickly crushed together like card board. William Maxwell, of Meadville traveling engineer of the second division of the road, who was in the passenger engine, had started back over the tender just before the collision. He was caught between the tender and baggage car and was ground into a jelly, one leg being torn off and thrown down the bank. Engineer C. E. Brown of Meadville, who was on the freight, and Fireman Stephen of the passenger train, followed suit and were badly hurt in tumbling down the embankment. Fireman Clayton Glass, of Meadville, was caught in the wreck and crushed to death.

The passenger train consisted of five sleepers, five day coaches and a baggage car. The latter and first day coach were jammed into bits and the occupants buried in the debris. The second day coach was badly wrecked, seats and floor being heaped up almost to the ceiling on the center of the coach. The rear portion was kept almost intact, but jammed into the forward portion of the third day coach, which was lifted off the tracks and pushed skyward at an angle of forty-five degrees. The second day coach was occupied by women and children. Mrs. Willoughby Dewey of Richland, Mich., aged 65, who sat in the forward part of the coach, met instant death the heavy timbers crushed her head. Other passengers were buried in the promiscuous pile of seats and timbers.

The stove was overturned and timbers took fire but the flames were extinguished in a few minutes.

As fast as taken out the injured were carried to sleeping cars and taken back to Kent. The Revere hotel and several near-by houses were at once thrown open and Doctors Shannon, Evans and Davis of Kent, and railroad surgeon Lashell of Meadville, began setting the broken bones and binding up the wounds of the wounded.

Following is a complete list of the injured: Mrs. A. M. Johnson of Muskegon, Mich., was the most seriously injured and cannot live. Both legs are broken. Mrs. Alice M. Sedgwick, Parma, Mich., right leg fractured, right thigh and foot burned, left hip dislocated. Mrs. G. C. Thompson, Montague, Mich., severe injury to back, still unconscious from internal injuries, physicians say the injuries of all three will probably prove fatal. Mrs. Rev. G. A. Buell, compound fracture of left leg, lacerated hip and internal injuries. Lucille Buell, aged 6, bruised hip and back; Mrs. Caroline Reed, Richland, Mich., leg broken. Mrs. Thomas Reicher, Muskegon, Mich., spine and hips injured; Mrs. L. H. Vanasdon, McDonald, Mich., right arm broken; Laura Van Anken, aged 11, lacerated and scalded on both feet. Nellie Stanford, Galesburg, Mich., back and right hip injured. G. C. Thompson, Montague, Mich., wounded on scalp, left shoulder, breast and right arm; Mary Richard, Muskegon, leg bruised; J. D. Hart, Rockford, Ills., right thigh bruised, left ankle and right shoulder sprained. Edward M. Moody, Shelby, Mich., left hip and both legs bruised. Frank M. Caldwell, second division passenger agent of the N. Y. P. & O., slightly wounded, cut over left eye, and left foot injured; Charles E. Mohansley, badly bruised by falling through the trestle to the track thirty feet, no bones broken. Miss Edith Somers, Grand Rapids, left leg fractured; Miss Hulda Wescott, Bangor, Mich., bruised back; Miss B. Clark, Bangor, hip and back bad.

The remains of the three dead were taken to Kent and Mrs. Dewey was sent to her home, Coopersville. Coroner Sherman will hold an inquest Thursday morning. Superintendent J. S. Matson, who went from Meadville to investigate the accident, says that the blame rests with the crew of the freight train. They had instructions to wait at Ravenna until the sixth section of the excursion train passed. Conductor Rigert, of the freight, claims that there were no lights on the fifth section to indicate that another section was to follow. The collision happened about 2:10 this morning. In about five minutes the freight could have made the Kent siding and the accident would have been avoided.

New York Stock Market

New York, Sept. 30—The stock market opened firmer and first prices were in almost all cases from ⅛ to ½ per cent. better than last night's figures. Further slight improvement was made in the early trading but a smart attack was again made on the list and Missouri Pacific dropped quickly from 63¼ to 62 at which figure it had opened, being one of the exceptions to the rule. The rest of the active stocks lost fractions. Erie and Atchison declining ⅛, Northern Pacific preferred ¾, and others smaller amounts. A generally firm tone set in later and at noon the market was firm at small fractions better than first figures. The announcement of the passing of the quarterly dividend by the Missouri Pacific directors caused the price down to 60, a decline of 2½ per cent since yesterday. The natural effect of the change in the stock from a dividend paying to the list of non-dividend paying stocks was to throw on the market large amounts of it for loans which could remain only on dividend paying securities. There were sharp declines in the later afternoon in other quarters. Sales 507,624 shares.

Donnelly's Wheat Opinion

St. Paul, Sept. 30.—Another Hold your wheat circular is out. This one is from Ignatius Donnelly president of the Minnesota alliance, who urges farmers to hold their wheat for thirty days longer. In it he says: "I think every intelligent man in Minnesota knows that wheat is now selling at far below its actual value. It is very clear that if not a bushel of wheat is sold in Minnesota by the farmers during the next thirty days the wheat pits of Chicago, New York and London would be full of dead bears and the farmers would get for their wheat crop what it is really worth. I do not speak in behalf of the state farmers but in my individual capacity, and I believe that the farmers are being robbed of one-fourth of the value of their profit and that if they should stop all sales of wheat for a time and then let it out slowly so as not to break down the market."

The Chilian Complication

Washington, Sept. 30.—The only important announcement made to-day concerning the Chilian complication was that the cruiser San Francisco, which arrived Monday at Callao, Peru, on her way northward to San Francisco, had been ordered back to Valparaiso. This statement was sanctioned by Secretary Tracy. The commander of the San Francisco was also directed to touch at Callao on his return journey, for any instructions that the navy department may send there. Secretary Tracy refuses to give the reasons of the San Francisco going to Callao, and Acting-secretary Wharton of the state department is equally reticent. The greatest secrecy is maintained by all those who are familiar with the situation at Valparaiso and requests that the government issue some official statement for the information of the public have been of no avail. In giving the order to the San Francisco, it is believed about the state and navy departments that the main feature of the difficulty between this country and Chili has lost its threatening aspect and that the matter can be disposed of through diplomacy. A gentleman who is familiar with all the facts in the possession of the state and navy departments said this afternoon that the difficulty was not of such an alarming nature as to justify the scary yell of secrecy that has been thrown about it by the government. The state department, it is understood, has concluded that the "right of asylum" granted Chilian refugees by Minister Egan is fully justified by precedent.

Irish National League

Chicago, Sept. 30.—Hundreds of delegates to the Irish National League convention to be held in Central Music hall to-morrow morning, arrived in the city from every state in the union to-day. Among the delegates the impression prevails that any attempt to condemn Parnell will cause a split in the convention, since Judge Fitzgerald, of Cincinnati, and John F. Finerty, both of whom are mentioned for the chairmanship, are pronounced in their adhesion to him, and have set up backing vociferously their choice. The expectation is that there will be 800 delegates in attendance at the convention.

You may drown me, shouted Molly but I wood never give in.

They did not run the risk of drowning Molly, but released her for the husband was convinced that she would rather drown than refuse to wag her red rag at him whenever she felt inclined to do so. It did not cure Molly. She became as great a scold as ever she had been before her public scolding. Some years after that critical punishment, the lord of Manor met John at a court leet, and inquired, "Well, John, how does Molly get on now with her scolding?"

"Oh, squire, her be pretty nearly cured on't."

"Did the ducking stool do that, John?"

"Oh, no! I let her jaw on as long as her liked. I got her to bed back and blistered her back, and her soon drop her scolding and be now as good a woman as they be made!"—National Review.

Man Is Bound to Be a Fool at Times.

Is love in and of itself silly? I am quite sure you will say that the underlying principle is a very wise one and very noble. But how immensely funny much loving is how illogical, and really a little off. The world makes fun of love and lovers, but never has an idea of abolishing it, or wishing it away from it. A man without love is a miserable fellow. We know he, too, is often ridiculous, so ridiculous that he is proof of a lack of commonsense, and really very little common sense is shown in the spoony period. The reason is that we can not be expected always to be reasonable beings. Reason is something we can make good use of a part of each day, and only a part of each year—besides there are fool periods in life that no one quite argues.

I know a man who boasted that he had never fallen in love that he could govern himself in his emotions as practically as in his eating; he didn't allow his affections to run away with him. One which the oldest woman in the room called "what a fool you are." You have lost half the fun of living trying to avoid its troubles. What you've gained in one direction you've lost in another." I will just undertake to say who was right, only the woman told the truth.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Cause of Blue Sky.

The interesting discovery that oxygen in its liquid state is blue has been made by M. Olszewski. To obtain this appearance it is only necessary to have a sufficient quantity of the liquid to form a layer about a twenty-fifth of an inch in thickness. This blue color is precisely that of the sky. This is significant. The thought will at once occur that the blueness of the sky is due to the intrinsic color of the oxygen of the atmosphere, for it is reasonable to suppose that, though that envelope does only contain oxygen in its gaseous form, the layer of the many miles in thickness through which we gaze may manifest the color which chiefly belongs to oxygen, and is shown in the liquid state of that gas. In a layer of only one-twenty fifth of an inch in thickness.—New York Recorder.

Some Household Superstitions.

The gift of a knife cuts friendship, in handing a needle the eye and not the point must be extended. The dropping of a dishcloth betokens a visitor, and he or she will be an entire stranger should a rock crow in the doorway. It is unlucky to cut the nails on Friday, although the Arabians, on the contrary, religiously pare on that day for the purpose. If you sing before breakfast you will cry before supper, and if you stumble up stairs you will not be married during the year. Putting on the left shoe first is regarded as an omen of ill. Augustus Cæsar put his left sandal on before his right one and nearly lost his life the same day in a mutiny. That had nothing to do with it, of course, and Bertha, in his "Hodiernus," gives him for the silly notion.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Ye Gentle Reader.

A zealous bear once remonstrated with a Brahmin. "You don't believe in the true God," he said. The Brahmin shrugged his shoulders. "Very likely," he answered, "but if my God couldn't make a better gentleman than your God, he needs I would exchange him for a black dog."—San Francisco Argonaut.

A Pair of Owls Kill Forty Mice a Day.

The barn owl, when she is young, brings to her nest a mouse about every twelve minutes, and as she is actively employed both at evening and dawn and as male and female hunt, forty mice a day is the lowest computation we can make.—Manchester Times.

Promoting Health.

The English government spends about $45,000,000 yearly in promoting health in the kingdom, a very large sum, but it seems to be a good investment, for the death rate is gradually diminishing. This is best illustrated by London. In the ten years ending in 1860, the deaths annually were twenty-four in every 1,000 of its inhabitants. In the ten years ending in 1890 the rate had fallen to twenty. This meant a saving of about 17,000 lives during the ten years.

Not only, however, were these lives saved, but there was a corresponding diminution of the number of cases of sickness, less misery and an increase in the vigor, health and happiness of the people.—Herald of Health.

He Saw His Grandmother.

A five-year-old boy residing on South street was beseeching his father to take him to visit his grandmother, who lives in Waltham. To get rid of him he said, "It costs ten dollars every time we go to see grandma Florence, and ten dollars don't grow on every bush." "Neither do grandmas grow on every bush," answered the little fellow promptly. They went.—Pittsburg Sentinel.

A Monstrous Engine.

The biggest engine in the world. The Pawtucket, it is called—is constantly at work pumping water from the zinc mines at Friedensville, Lehigh county. Its energy is equal to that of 5,000 horses, or, as it is computed, of 35,000 men. In the same county there is still preserved at Hokendauqua the first engine ever used in Lehigh and first upon Allentown by Eli Sager in 1820.—Tamaqua Blade.

There is nothing surprising in the fact that Colorado Democrats neglected to congratulate Candidate Flower. The wonder is that they congratulated Candidates Campbell and Boies.

The attempt to force the trades unions of this city into politics, however, will doubtless receive a well merited rebuke. Republican and Democratic workingmen alike will condemn such an unmeritable and transparent "fake" as the proposition to trade 200 good votes for the three places on the ticket which are least open to cover.

There is some reason for believing that Governor Eaton has given Chili good ground for offense. Under such circumstances there are diplomatic ways of settling his wrath. Any attempt to drive him out will rightly be construed as an affront to the American people and treated accordingly. So long as he is there he is entitled to a full measure of courtesy and respect.

A petition is being circulated asking the county commissioners to open a road to the Cripple Creek mining district, and to expend $4,000 or so much of it as may be necessary to put the road in good condition. The necessity for immediate action is explained in the petition to be that eastern private capital is already being organized to take the only direct and feasible road to said camp. The distance by the proposed new road is twenty-eight miles from this city. A road has been planned from Canon City which is twenty-four miles long. As the mines mentioned in this county and Colorado Springs people have large interests there the trade naturally belongs to this city. It ought not to be difficult to secure aid to it, if the road is opened and established before the Canon City road is built.

The report filed at Buffalo last night by President George William Curtis is an important contribution to political literature. The history of the civil service reform movement during the past ten years is one of immense progress. At the present time it is rare to find a man of intelligence who believes that the public offices of the country should be considered as the personal property of the person having the appointive power, or that they should be so distributed as to serve the selfish interests of a personal party. That such a feeling does exist to some extent is not to be denied, but it is far from being as prevalent as it was a decade ago, and this change in public sentiment has been of great political benefit. The public service is unquestionably more honest, more efficient and more economical than it was ten years ago. The Civil Service Reform league has good reason to congratulate itself on its past record, and to go forward to the work that is to be done with fresh courage.

General Boulanger was one of the men who just missed being great. A little more and he would have rivalled Napoleon, a little less and he would have lived humbly and unknown. As it was he was a conspicuous failure both in his life and death. Napoleon, who overthrew the liberties of his countrymen, commands admiration for his genius; we cannot like him nor respect him. Boulanger attempted an equal crime and failed. It is further to his discredit that he received large sums of money for his plans from the royalists, whom he openly opposed and whom if successful he would have betrayed. For we may be sure had Boulanger become great powerful in France, the power he had won would not have been used to advance the ambition of anyone other than himself. It would be an interesting speculation to consider how far this secret intrigue with decayed royalty operated to prevent the success of his schemes. Certainly Boulanger was much overrated both as to his influence and his ability. The sudden blaze of fame and popularity found in his character little solid sustenance. At the critical time he proved himself a deserter and Delilah took his strength. The melancholy suicide, with all its dishonorable circumstances, shows how far Boulanger was at any time from Napoleon's path. Shut in the ocean prison, Napoleon, like a wounded lion, growled till death came, and was ever ready for a spring at his enemies. Boulanger sought death like a hare-hearted boy. He published to all the world his immorality and weakness, and living himself is dishonored corpse on a dishonorable grave.

The Capitol Bonds.

Denver News.

Both the Republican and Democratic conventions in this county have passed strong resolutions in favor of the proposition to issue $800,000 in bonds to aid the speedy completion of the state capitol. The action

[illegible] in the [illegible] of the whole state. The commission has about money enough on hand to continue the work until bonds can be voted and issued. If they are not voted by the people each year the building will have to stop, and a large loss to the taxpayers of the state. The reasons why the bonds should be voted may be briefly summarized as follows:

First—The state is now paying $60,000 a year in rents. If the bonds are voted, the building will be advanced sufficiently to accommodate the next session of the legislature and provide quarters for the state offices, and the rent roll will cease. If the bonds are not voted, the rent roll will go on for (no) years, at an annual expense of $100,000—one third the whole amount of the bonds.

Second—A large force of expert workmen has been collected, especially granite cutters, who would be thrown out of employment in case work was stopped, and would naturally become dispersed. It would be a great loss to the building if [illegible] scattered.

Third—If work ceased, the state would be rendered liable to just claims for damages from contractors. The brick and granite walls would be exposed to injury, as would also the very fine building plant which has been created.

Fourth—By the issue of bonds the payment for the capitol will be extended over a term of years, and the present generation of taxpayers relieved of some of their burdens. A state capitol is a building for the future as well as the present, and the future should bear a portion of the cost. The taxpayers of today are building school houses and court houses, and hospitals and other public buildings. Why should they bear all the burden?

The News commends the matter to the intelligent public of the state. Good judgment, economy and the best interests of the taxpayers require the bonds to be voted.

TO HEAD OFF WAKEFULNESS

Here Is a Method Which Is Said to Be Infallible for Securing Sleep.

The good old cure for sleeplessness, holds good through all changes, an easy conscience and a healthy body. A due portion of fatigue and quiet surroundings may be added as also necessary to induce refreshing sleep, and sleep which is not refreshing is about as unsatisfactory as wakefulness. Nevertheless, to people of a nervous temperament some strictly material rules for courting the balmy god with success are not to be despised. Many little things conduce to sleeplessness, the avoidance of which will remove that trouble.

Indigestion and fast overtaking tea and coffee taken in excess, excitement generally, all tend to a multiplicity of the brain, which prevents calm sleep. Many devices are resorted to to expel such nervousness. The old suggestion, made in ridicule originally, to read some very dry book or to have some one talk you to sleep is really excellent in practice. The dull monotony of a prosy book and even more the dull monotone of a prosy talker, usually produces just the dull impressions on the brain which are required to induce sleep. A monotonous train of thought often succeeds.

An eminent student of brain disorders prescribed the constant dripping of water on a metal pan. The regular ticking of a clock frequently sends sleepers into the desired state of brain inaction, though in fact all these processes may serve to drive a sleepless person into a wild hysteria of wakefulness. But an old and most curiously recommended physical process comes to us in old books.

It was announced many years ago as a great discovery in England by a Mr. Gardner, and most commendatory testimonials as to its effectiveness were given by the late Prince Albert, Sir Fowell Buxton, Sheridan Knowles and other eminent persons. It was considered so valuable that a large sum had to be paid for it for publication by Mr. Binns in his quaint book, now almost unknown, entitled "The Anatomy of Sleep."

The prescription as thereon printed is as follows: The person who after going to bed finds himself sleepless is to lie on his right side, with his head comfortably placed on the pillow, having his neck straight. The respiration may be noted by him then to close his lips gently and take a rather full inspiration, breathing through the nostrils unless breathing through the mouth is habitual. Having taken the full inspiration, the lungs are to be left to their own action; that is, expiration is not to be interfered with. Attention must now be fixed upon the respiration.

The person must imagine that he sees the breath proceeding from his nostrils in a continuing stream, and at the instant that he brings his mind to conceive this, apart from all other ideas, consciousness leaves him and he falls asleep. Sometimes it happens that the method does not at once succeed. It should then be persisted in. Let the person take thirty or forty full inspirations and proceed as before; but he must by no means attempt to count the inspirations, for if he does the mere counting will keep him from sleep.

It is certainly to be said of this plan that it is safe and can rarely be tested. The other prescriptions, such as a good conscience and a well earned fatigue, need not be set aside on account of it. New York Tribune.

Amount of Sleep Required.

Sleep is the principal agent in body recuperation. The amount needed is different for different persons. For the ordinary worker from six to eight hours is necessary; yet how often, in the battle for existence, is the desire for sleep forcibly suppressed and the night's rest foolishly shortened. Sooner or later insomnia wreaks its vengeance on the physiological sinner. Many a person who once robbed himself of the necessary amount of sleep would now gladly sleep, but cannot.

Many nervous troubles first develop into disease when joined with sleeplessness. It appears as a symptom of a long standing nervous disturbance, but to many it appears as the first signs of disorders, when it is only a result of causes in operation long before.—Herald of Health.

Storks' Nests.

Sparrows and wrens not unfrequently build in the stork's huge pile of sticks, a nest within a nest, which we rarely see in England. In Holland and Denmark a common mode of inducing storks to take up their abode is to fasten a cart wheel on the top of a tall pole erected in some field. At the village of Luitzedam, near the Hague, there is one of these, which is regularly tenanted.

Closer to the town, in the plantations around the house of one of the gentry, there is an enormous nest. It is placed at the top of a large silver fir, the leading shoot of which has been broken by the wind. At Wassenaar, a village some miles off, where immense quantities of bulbs are grown, a pair of storks rear their young ones on the church tower. Chambers' Journal.

METHODIST MEETING.

BISHOPS AND DELEGATES FROM ALL THE WORLD TO CONVENE.

The Ecumenical Conference at Washington Will Represent About 50,000,000 of Methodist People—Including Members and Northstars.

[Special Correspondence.]

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28.—What is said to be the greatest religious gathering in the world will be seen here in a little more than a week. It is the ecumenical conference of Methodists, which will be held from Oct. 7 to 20 in the Metropolitan Methodist Episcopal church of this city. Already the guests from foreign lands are arriving in large numbers, and in a few days 200 of the shining lights of Methodism in all parts of the world will be here. These 200 men will represent an enormous constituency. Fifty millions of Methodist people in the world, and all of them represented, directly or indirectly, at this conference, is the estimate given me by Bishop Hurst. Methodism is as broad as the world itself. It is divided into a surprising number of sects, all having Wesleyanism in common, and all meeting together in this great council to discuss questions pertaining to the spiritual, educational and temporal progress of the almost countless and ever-increasing millions of human beings.

From Europe, Asia, Africa, Australia the Methodists are coming to meet here representatives of every state and territory in the Union and every province of Canada and British America. The conference is divided into sections, eastern and western, corresponding to the hemispheres. The western section, America, sends 300 delegates, and the eastern section, Old World, 200. At the first ecumenical conference, held in London ten years ago, the delegates from the Old World outnumbered those from the new. Now, however, the star of empire is seen to be moving westward in Methodism, as in most of the other activities of civilization. No doubt many readers, even those of the Methodist faith, will be surprised to learn the large number of Methodist sects in this country. Of course the Methodist Episcopal church is the largest organization, as is shown by the number of delegates it will have in this conference 100.

The Methodist Episcopal Church South will have 64 delegates; African Methodist Episcopal church, 16; African Methodist Church of Zion, 15; Colored Methodist church, 9; United African Methodist Episcopal church, 3; African Union Methodist Protestant church, 3; Methodist Protestant church, 9; American Wesleyan church, 6; Free Methodist church, 3; Congregational Methodist church, 3; Methodist Church of Canada, 24; Primitive Methodist church, 3; Independent Methodist church, 2; United Brethren in Christ, 7; United Brethren in Christ (old constitution), 2, and British Methodist Episcopal church, 3.

The 200 delegates from the Old World are divided among the Wesleyan Methodist church, the Irish Methodist church, the Methodist New Connexion, the Primitive Methodist church, the Bible Christian church, the Union Methodist Free church, the Free Methodist church, the Australian Methodist church, the Indian Methodist church, the Wesleyan Reform union, the South African Methodist church and the North Indian Methodist church.

For once in its history the national capital will find its politicians and office-seekers outnumbered by the bishops, eminent divines and distinguished laymen temporarily sojourning within the shadow of the Goddess of Liberty on the great dome. Seventy or eighty bishops from all parts of the world will be seen together on one platform. Here is a list of the bishops from the most important American churches:

Methodist Episcopal Church—Thomas Bowman, D. D., LL. D., St. Louis; Randolph S. Foster, D. D., LL. D., Roxbury, Mass.; Stephen M. Merrill, D. D., LL. D., Chicago; Edward G. Andrews, D. D., New York; Henry W. Warren, D. D., LL. D., Denver; Cyrus D. Foss, D. D., LL. D., Philadelphia; John F. Hurst, D. D., LL. D., Washington; William X. Ninde, D. D., Topeka, Kan.; John M. Walden, D. D., Cincinnati; Willard F. Mallalieu, D. D., New Orleans; Charles H. Fowler, D. D., LL. D., San Francisco; John H. Vincent, D. D., LL. D., Buffalo; James N. Fitzgerald, D. D., LL. D., Minneapolis; Isaac W. Joyce, D. D., LL. D., Chattanooga; John P. Newman, D. D., LL. D., Omaha; Daniel A. Goodsell, D. D., LL. D., Fort Worth, Tex.

Methodist Episcopal Church South—J. C. Keener, New Orleans; A. W. Wilson, Baltimore; J. C. Granberry, Ashland, Va.; H. C. Hargrove, Nashville; W. W. Duncan, Spartanburg, S. C.; C. B. Galloway, Jackson, Miss.; E. R. Hendrix, Kansas City; J. S. Key, Fort Worth, Tex.; A. C. Haygood, Los Angeles, Cal.; O. P. Fitz Gerald, San Francisco.

African Methodist Episcopal Church—S. T. Jones, Washington; J. W. Hood, Fayetteville, N. C.; T. H. Lomax, D. D., Charlotte, N. C.; C. R. Harris, D. D., Salisbury, N. C.; D. A. Payne, D. D., LL. D., Wilberforce, Ohio; W. Wayman, D. D., Baltimore; J. M. Brown, D. D., D. C. L., Washington; W. J. Gaines, D. D., Atlanta; B. T. Tanner, D. D., LL. D., Philadelphia; J. M. Turner, D. D., LL. D., Atlanta; B. W. Arnett, D. D., Wilberforce; O. A. Grant, D. D., San Antonio, Tex.

In addition to these there are a dozen others from America and perhaps fifty from Europe, Asia and Australia. Were so many bishops ever seen together before? Space is lacking to name the prominent divines who will take part, but among them are these: J. M. Buckley, editor of The Christian Advocate, New York; T. S. J. Jackson, of North India; N. B. Leonard, Cincinnati; W. E. Simonsen for the Danes and Norwegians; Earl Cranston, Colorado; J. C. Davison, Japan; H. R. Revels (formerly United States senator), Mississippi; P. G. Junker and four others from Germany; W. F. Oldham, Bengal, and Avenela Balderas, Mexico. The list of eminent laymen is equally long, including such names as Hon. E. G. Niedringhaus, St. Louis; Governor R. E. Pattison, Pennsylvania; Chancellor Goodnight, South Bend, Ind.; Hon. A. H. Colquitt, Atlanta; H. R. Vance, Asheville, N. C., and a few foreigners of note in the world.

It is well to remark at this point that the Methodist church is in a state of transition from the old English or purely episcopal form to a representatively republican form, and more than one fair reader will note that the names given are all masculine. The question of admitting women as lay delegates was argued with extraordinary ability at the quadrennial conference held at the Metropolitan opera house in New York in May, 1888, and was referred back to the local conferences. It is now going through the same "slow grind" (only much slower) that the amendments to the United States constitution had to go through in 1869-70. It has nothing, however, to do with this body, which is not legislative, as will presently appear.

It is a fact of great interest that although Methodists usually date the beginning of Methodism from 1739, when John Wesley organized the "United Societies" and entered regularly upon preaching in the open air, it was not till 1784—the year of Wesley's death—that an exact Methodist census was compiled—at least any now considered perfectly accurate. At that time Methodism had been established in all the British islands, in France, the United States, West Indies, Nova Scotia and Newfoundland, and included 226 circuits, 540 traveling preachers and 124,599 members in good standing. What a marvelous growth in the subsequent 100 years!

The Calvinistic Methodists rose from a diversity of views between Wesley and Whitefield, and have their chief support in Wales. The Protestant Methodists began in opposition to an exclusively episcopal system of government. Other branches in like manner were formed on various grounds, and their practical union makes this an occasion of great interest.

The conference is not a legislative body. Its acts are in no wise binding upon the members or the churches which they represent. It is a council designed wholly for discussion, for interchange of thought, to bring nearer together and in firmer woof the fabric of Methodism the world over. With all these bishops and ministers in one assembly hall, the public would naturally expect to rid of talk. It appears that the reverend gentlemen know their own weaknesses, for the regulations governing the presentation of papers provided for on the official programme have it that no paper shall occupy more than twenty-five minutes in reading, and no one of the speakers who follow the paper shall talk more than fifteen minutes. Other members not on the programme may not speak more than five minutes. One of the rules is in the interest of impromptu oratory. It says: "The addresses may not be read, but notes as aids to memory, may be used."

One at least of the distinguished bishops will take more than passing interest in the church edifice in which the conference is to meet—the Metropolitan Methodist church on Four-and-a-half street, but five blocks from the Capitol. He is Bishop Newman, of Omaha, "Parson Newman," who for eight and a half years was the pastor of this church, which gained fame almost as much by his eloquence as from the fact that it was President Grant's favorite place of worship. For years the old Metropolitan church, then in the center of the fashionable district, was crowded with people who came to see the hero of the war and hear the popular pastor. Great throngs took up their places on the sidewalks to see President Grant drive up with the pair of beautiful Arabian horses which had been sent him as a present from the sultan of Turkey.

Every one will remember the strong friendship which existed between General Grant and Parson Newman. When Rev. Dr. Newman's first three years at the Metropolitan had expired, and he came face to face with the necessity of going to another charge, Methodist law not then permitting a pastor to remain more than three years continuously at one church, General Grant came to the rescue with an appointment of his friend as inspector of consuls. As inspector of consuls Parson Newman made a fine trip around the world, returning refreshed in body and richer in mind to serve three or six years more in his old pulpit, to which he had been eagerly weighted. The Metropolitan is now in charge of an eminent minister, Rev. George L. Corey, who, as chairman of the entertainment committee, is engaged in the delightful task of helping with hospitable local laymen 500 brother ministers, from all countries and of all races, in such manner that there shall be no friction and fuss.

ROBERT GRAVES

Thomas A. Janvier.

NARRAGANSETT PIER, R. I., Sept. 28.—Thomas A. Janvier, the writer of short stories that are said "to have a grace of diction and a peculiar felicitousness of phrase that are uncommon," had, only a short time ago, a volume entitled, "Color Studies and a Mexican Campaign," published by Scribner's, and there has just been issued, by the same house, his new book, "An Uncle of an Angel, and Other Stories," from the press of Harper's. He had a more familiar acquaintance with the Spanish-American than any other writer of the present day, and in his tall, muscular figure, dark complexion, piercing eyes and full black beard, is not unlike the hero of some Spanish-American romance. His name is of French extraction, though he does not affect any foreign relation, but his personnel would indicate that there flowed in his veins some strain of blood that may have had its source on the banks of the Guadalquivir, or in the vineyards clustered at the foot of the Pyrenees. He passed the last few weeks of the season at Narragansett Pier, arranging notes of some new literary work. His "Mexican Guide," a standard work, is now in the sixth edition.

The Farm Ballad Poet.

BROOKLYN, Sept. 28.—The author of the five volumes of "Farm and City Ballads, Legends, Festivals," etc., has lately been making occasional appearances, which his admirers will soon see in form, some issues of the various publications and it is quite possible that Harper & Bros. will yet issue a sixth volume of his poetry. Quite as interesting in her way as is the wife of the noted poet and lecturer. She has to do with many of the worthiest charities, besides being one of the managers of the Brooklyn Home for Consumptives. Mrs. Carleton, who is a native of Vermont, was sent, at the age of [illegible], on a special errand of mission to Great Britain, through which she [illegible] 1878, her marriage [illegible] years after her return.

She is a gracious woman of sweet disposition, attractive in appearance and dear to a large circle of friends who know her in her happy home life at 65 Greene avenue, this city.

At the Court of a South Sea King.

A Narrative of Life on the Gilbert Islands, an out-of-the-way Group of the South Pacific Ocean.

BY

ROBERT LOUIS STEVENSON.

A new series of letters by ROBERT LOUIS STEVENSON, describing his experience and adventures in the Gilbert Islands. This is a group cut off from all regular intercourse with the outside world, to which no post goes, and where only occasional trading vessels touch.

Life in this strange place is most interesting and picturesque. The articles are full of incidents and anecdotes, delightful character sketches of queer people, and dramatic bits of dialogue. The narrative is as captivating as a piece of fiction, full of color, of movement, of strange situations and pictures. The material is altogether fresh and novel. In these papers Stevenson is at his best; they show in its full maturity the charming style of the most perfect master of English of our day.

VI. THE FIVE DAYS' FESTIVAL. Invited to the King's summer house. A concert of native singers. A barbaric opera. A wonderfully dramatic dance. A South Sea topical song. A native who made a flying machine. A magic lantern show.

VII. HUSBAND AND WIFE IN THE GILBERTS. A Paradise of Naked Women. Polygamy in the South Seas. Etiquette among the natives. Scenes in a Gilbertine household.

VIII. THE KING OF APEMAMA. The royal trader. The hero of song and the butt of gossip. The last of the South Sea tyrants. A savage Napoleon. An island chief who owns ships.

IX. HOW THE KING BUILT A TOWN FOR STEVENSON. Constructing a city in a day. Walled by a taboo.

X. THE PALACE OF MANY WOMEN. A retinue of dusky ladies. An evening at cards with the King. A game of royal inventions. A kingly poet of the Southern Seas.

XI. OUR ATTENDANT FROM THE PALACE. Uncle Parker and his sleight-of-hand performance. The royal cook, and how he was disgraced.

MEMORIES OF WAR TIMES

WILL BE REVIVED BY BRILLIANT MILITARY DISPLAYS AT CHICAGO.

Unveiling of the Equestrian Statue of General Grant and the Reunion of the Army of the Tennessee Are the Big Events.

Beginning on the 7th and 8th of October, will be given military ceremonies attended with all the brilliancy and eclat, the unveiling of an equestrian statue to General Grant and the reunion exercises and parade of the Army of the Tennessee. The interesting occasions are thus described: The men who fought Grant's battles and followed his fortunes will gather in numbers to do honor to their old leader, will glorify a commander while the grief for his loss is fresh in their hearts.

Will parade the army of the Tennessee, carrying representatives of his corps and parade at the head of the parade, continued to lend military glory to a name which celebrates the deeds of a great soldier. Sherman guided it to a splendid triumph, and with uncovered heads the battle scarred marshals and capitans listen to the eulogies upon his spotless character. Sherman was president of the society of the Tennessee for twenty-one years, and at its twenty-third reunion the society will bow before his vacant chair. The Army of the Tennessee has waited years to participate in the ceremonies of Grant's statue, the ceremonies having been delayed owing to a defect in the cast. The statue, designed by the sculptor of the McPherson statue, Louis Rediskoff, will be placed in a temporary structure in Lincoln park, the site commanding a view of Lake Michigan.

The ceremonies of unveiling the statue will take place on Wednesday, Oct. 7, in the afternoon, and will be preceded by a great parade of regular soldiers, militia, Grand Army posts, Loyal Legion veterans, Society of the Army of the Tennessee and numerous civic and semi-military bodies. The Society of the Tennessee will occupy the place of honor in the line, at the head of the column. General Walter Q. Gresham, a prominent member of the Tennessee society, will deliver the oration at the statue.

The parade which will open the ceremonies in honor of Grant will be led by General Nelson A. Miles, chief marshal. The route will be along the most magnificent avenues and drives of the city, including Michigan avenue, Rush street and Lake Shore drive, in full view from the lake. There will be a marine parade on the lake.

In addition to the local bodies of militia, veterans and the visiting societies named in the programme, invitations have been given to all other military organizations of the country to send representatives. In the president and his cabinet, the chiefs of the army and the admirals and officers of the navy. Mrs. General Grant will be among the distinguished guests.

The Society of the Tennessee will convene the morning of the 7th and adjourn to join in the ceremonies of unveiling. At 8 o'clock in the evening it will again in Auditorium hall and listen to an oration on General Sherman by Colonel Andrew Hickenlooper, of Cincinnati. General Hickenlooper was an officer of Sherman's army and will speak especially of the peculiarities of the military genius of his old commander.

On Thursday, the 8th, the Society of the Tennessee will unbend a little from the formalities of Wednesday's proceedings and will go on an excursion to Camp Grant. Returning, in the evening they will dine to a grand banquet at the Auditorium House. Here will gather the members of the society, with their wives and sweethearts, for the "vets" are of course too old to have sweethearts, and a goodly number of invited guests. At the banquet the eloquent Colonel Ingersoll will speak. Colonel Nobly Noble will talk in response to a toast, Chauncey M. Depew will entertain the party and General Horace Porter, the ready talker upon the campaigns of Grant, will add a story or an anecdote. Jefferson Davis is also to be among the guests.

The Society of the Army of the Tennessee was organized in the North Carolina camp in April, 1863. General John A. McClernand, then chief of staff to Lieutenant General Grant, was elected president and served as such until his death, in 1890. General Sherman succeeded Hawkins and served in that office year after year until his death. Singularly enough, Colonel M. Dickson, who has been secretary of the society since its organization, followed General Sherman to the grave a few days after the death of his old chieftain. Who will fill these vacancies at Chicago is probably General Grenville M. Dodge will succeed General Sherman, and Colonel W. C. Cable will be made secretary.

The association holds the memory of deceased officers of that army as its special care and has erected memorials to General Rawlins and McPherson. The monument to General Rawlins in Washington was placed there by the society at a cost of $20,000.

are common, and a Montreal paper of eight years is curing the sick in amounts and exciting a regular pilgrimage.

Rose de Lima Belleville lives with her parents at 85 Versailles street, Montreal, and is a thoroughly French Canadian child of the old Breton stock, with brilliant black eyes and lively brain. She is the seventh girl in a family of eight, and performed her first miracle at the age of eight, curing a whitlow hand of whitlow by passing her own hand, holding a goose feather, over it. A policeman named Henri Proulx was prostrated by spinal disease; Rose passed hand and feather along his back and he was healed at once. A woman named Geroux was palsied and had not walked for years; Rose had her walking without crutches in a few days. She next cured Sister Pelleran of St. Laurent and Mr. Comeau of St. Laurent and several others of acute rheumatism, and then the rush became so great that the child was taken to Quebec and installed at 50 Hall street.

The clergy and physicians decline to offer an opinion on the subject. She has, however, given instant relief to scores of people suffering from neuralgia, rheumatism, palsy and other ailments, and at times the crush is so great that the police have to regulate the crowd. These things are set down here just as given by the people cured, who are willing to swear to the facts, and the child has been sent for by parties in Chicago who want to be made whole. It is probable, however, that her power will not work in that city, and it is painful to add that she is no longer vivacious, but strangely silent and reserved.

JOHN GRIFFIN CARLISLE.

He Has Passed Much of the Summer at Eastern Resorts.

(Special Correspondence.)

New York, Sept. 23.—Senator John G. Carlisle has been spending a good deal of his time this summer at eastern seashore resorts. That is something unusual for him, as he has been obliged during his summer vacation to take up such law practice as is permitted to him or as he is willing to accept, in addition to his duties in congress. Mr. Carlisle spent a few days in Boston and several days at Narragansett Pier, and has been for a week or ten days in New York city, or what amounts to the same thing in this hot weather—at Coney Island. He is here with other members of the senate doing certain committee work, which the senate imposed upon these members, and upon which they expect to report when that body meets next December.

J. G. CARLISLE.

Curiously enough, Mr. Carlisle has met more of the Republican politicians of New York and the east than do a few of members of his own party. He has [illegible] those Republicans whom he has met by his persistency in seeking information respecting men and measures from the east. He has been particularly interested in learning all that could be told him about Governor Hill, of New York. He knows Mr. Cleveland well, and probably understands that man's intellectual character as well as any politician of either party, and it is delightful to hear Mr. Carlisle analyze those qualities which have in his opinion made Cleveland strong, and discuss Cleveland's career both in its successes and its failures.

But Governor Hill is a new quantity to him, and he has been very much interested in Hill, and is anxious to know what are the qualities which have made such a career as Hill has enjoyed possible. The other day, while sitting on the piazza of a Narragansett Pier hotel, Mr. Carlisle said that he was wondering whether Governor Hill knew that even experienced men, when they entered the senate, were expected to laugh at the beginning. When Andrew Johnson, Mr. Carlisle said, entered the senate, after he had acted as president, he went into the primary class. The senate is no respecter of persons, and that was the reason, Mr. Carlisle declared, why, when he had an earlier opportunity, he did not go to the senate.

It was always a matter of wonder why, when Mr. Carlisle was serving his first term as speaker, he did not accept an opportunity to be chosen a member of the senate. His friends in Kentucky sent him word that he could be chosen without trouble, and he replied that he could not take the office. The reason, he said, was this: The speakership is the most important office next to the presidency, and aside from the duty he felt he owed his party to serve out his term, he did not believe that he should, as a politician, resign an office which he was supreme to take another where he would have to go to the foot of the class, as he expressed it. That was the reason why Mr. Carlisle was not chosen senator in 1884, and why he waited for five years before accepting the high honor.

When he was elected senator another man than he was to be supreme in the house of representatives. So he said that going from a post of so great power as the governor of the state of New York to a seat in the United States senate was very much like stepping from the speaker's chair in the house into the senate chamber, for, no matter what a man's prominence may be, or his political influence when he first enters the senate, he goes to the foot of the class. Even Mr. Blaine, Mr. Carlisle said, found this to be true.

HERBERT EDWARDS.

The Widow of the "Boy Governor."

The widow of Stevens T. Mason, once notedlas the "boy governor" of Michigan, is living in Cleveland, in seclusion and in circumstances very close to poverty. Yet she was once quite a noted woman, and is akin to the reigning family of Russia. She was born seventy-years ago in Pennsylvania of Russian parents, her father having been a son of Geo. Beauffanoff, who was commander of a Russian army under Alexander I. During a temporary exile of the family in America she was born; but her father died soon after and she was reared by an uncle.

MRS. CAROLINE MASON.

Much of the family wealth had been lost by the ups and downs of Russian politics, and her uncle became a mining engineer. As such he went to Michigan. She went with him, and in Detroit met the "boy governor," to whom she was married. He left her an ample competency, but nearly all of it was lost during the bank failures of 1873 and subsequent years. She has since supported herself by the practice of medicine, and is reputed quite skillful.

IT PROVED TOO BIG A JOB

Speculator White Tried to Corner [illegible] and Lost His Money.

Samuel Van Cullen White, the Deacon Whipple of Wall street, the Deacon White of Plymouth church, and the popular Mr. White of 210 Columbia heights, Brooklyn, is "done up." His friends say it is but temporarily, and there is much sympathy for Wall street for the crushed speculator, who lay a colossal "corner" in potatoes, which was to put the price of potatoes up. He started in to buy all the potatoes offered for August, September and October delivery. At first the market was easy, but as the demand increased the price began to go up. The new crop was heavy, but Mr. White's agents bought the lower grades and held the better grades for higher prices. As the time for delivery drew near there was much [illegible] in the market. Mr. White's agents found themselves with about 12,000,000 bushels on their hands, and it had declined from 75 cents Aug. 18 to 50 cents on Sept. 22. There was nothing to do but assign. The "Deacon" has often been prominently before the public. As the ardent supporter of Beecher in the dark days of 1874-8, he gained a national reputation. In the so-called "Cable Road" of 1884 he made $1,000,000 in Delaware, Lackawanna and Western. In the "Lake Shore coup," when the stock went from 35 to 65, he cleared $200,000. And in 1886 he defeated David B. James for congress.

He was born in North Carolina sixty years ago. His father, a Quaker, moved there from Pennsylvania, but when the slavery controversy waxed warm he removed to Illinois, where his son worked very hard on the farm till the age of eighteen. He was graduated from Knox college, at Galesburg, in 1861, studied law with Grant Brown and John A. Kasson at Des Moines, where he practiced with success till the close of the war. He then located in Wall street and soon became famous. He is a fine classical scholar, an enthusiast in astronomy and a liberal patron of art.

The Bay State Republican Leader.

Hon. Charles H. Allen, who has been chosen Republican candidate for governor of Massachusetts, is comparatively a young man. He was born at Lowell April 13, 1843, and after a creditable career in the public schools of that city went to Amherst college, from which institution he was graduated in 1869. Three years later his alma mater conferred on him the degree of master of arts.

HON. C. H. ALLEN.

Upon completion of his student-life Mr. Allen engaged in mercantile pursuits. He, however, found time to devote to politics and held in succession several local offices. His constituents then sent him to the Massachusetts legislature, twice as a representative and once as a senator. After that they elected him to the Forty-ninth and Fiftieth congresses from the Eighth district. At Washington he won considerable fame as an orator.

Fresh Water Pearls.

Fresh water pearls are found in many streams of this country in the shells of mussels, called "unios." More than $10,000 worth of them were sent to New York at one time within three months from Wisconsin, one specimen being sold for $300.—Washington Star.

A Mental Relief.

THE GAZETTE.

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 1, 1891.

Miss Whitlock's opening dance comes off to-night.

T. J. Dr. Montague returns from the East today.

Abe Jean Davis is back from his Kansas trip.

Hemenway & Bish received a carload of very handsome Concord grapes yesterday.

Gray & Irby will show the Manitou branch of their photograph establishment next Saturday.

The college broom brigade has organized for this year, and has elected Miss Virginia Currier for its captain.

Mr. J. M. Sellers, proprietor of the Alamo hotel, has returned from St. Louis, where he was attending the meeting of the Odd Fellows.

A man named Bryant was arrested yesterday afternoon for drinking on the street. He was sentenced to appear in this morning's police court, and was given his liberty.

The ratification meeting at which the workingmen will be given a chance to themselves say what they think of the Democratic nominations, will be held this evening.

Stark & Titus have a cage of Arizona quail on exhibition in front of their store. They are pretty little gray birds, a trifle smaller than the California quail and make nice cage pets.

Mr. W. H. Pollep, who has had charge of the Rio Grande express office in Manitou all summer, has taken the position of cashier in the uptown Rio Grande express office in this city.

The young people of the Presbyterian church are always getting up novel entertainments. This time it is to be a conundrum banquet, to be held Oct. 2, and is for the benefit of the piano fund.

Mr. R. P. Davie, the young man who stands behind the prescription counter at Woods & Torrence's drug store, was made happy by the arrival of a 9½ pound boy baby at his house yesterday morning.

Colorado City is enjoying a slight diphtheria scare. There are four cases reported and grave fears of many more. Careful regulations are being enforced and there is little danger of a dangerous spread of the disease.

A communication received at this office, relating to the alleged overloading of the horses engaged on the Bijou street viaduct approach, has been reported to Acting local secretary Brisbin of the Colorado Humane society.

The Gazette has received some splendid samples of field corn from the Bradford & Callaway ranch, just east of the town of Fountain. They have 100 acres of the corn. They also sent some big and heavy samples of sugar beets.

Mr. J. W. Moulder has removed his drop-a-nickel-in-the-slot phonograph machines, which have attracted considerable attention here during the last few months, to Pueblo. Lead discs were playing too important a part in his receipts.

Mrs. Mary C. C. Bradford, an experienced and highly recommended teacher, is in the city and is taking pupils in French, German and studies of current topics. She will be found at the residence of Mrs. E. T. Bacon, 320 East St. Vrain street, for a few days.

The arc lights in the streets and many incandescents in private houses went out at about half past eight o'clock last night and many of them stayed so the remainder of the night. The cause of trouble was a burnt out armature. The spare machine was not capable of meeting the emergency.

William Thompson, the lunatic brought to this city on Tuesday, is now in the county jail, where he will be kept for several days. Dr. Strickler has hopes that the man may improve and therefore wishes to wait a few days before bringing the case before a jury for investigation.

John Adams and George Dubles were fined $5.00 and costs each in the police court for fighting. The two men became involved in a dispute in front of the postoffice, and agreed to fight it out. This they did on West Huerfano street, and succeeded in settling their quarrel after the first round.

Mr. George Baker, the young man whose arm was caught in a drier at the Empire laundry last Saturday, had the injured member amputated between the elbow and shoulder yesterday. Dr. Hadfield performed the operation, assisted by Doctors Kimball, Estelle and Spicer. The young man is doing well. His folks have been sent for and they are expected to arrive from New Jersey tomorrow.

At a meeting of the State Oratorical association held at the college it has been decided to hold the coming annual exhibition in this city at a much later date than formerly, and the time will probably be in March. A letter was read from the Agricultural college at Fort Collins which contained an application from that institution to join the association, and it will probably be admitted.

Grand-chancellor J. K. Miller of the Knights of Pythias is having a busy time with the correspondence of his office, which, he says, is much larger than he had expected. He is about to establish new lodges at Spring Gulch, Buena Vista and Glenwood Springs. The Uniform Rank of this city has already commenced drilling for the prize at the encampment in Manitou next fall.

Evening classes in book-keeping, penmanship, arithmetic and other useful branches under competent instructors are now being formed at the rooms of the Young Men's Christian association; free to members. Class in athletics will meet for reorganization under a competent teacher on Friday evening at 8 o'clock. The class for junior members will meet on Friday afternoon at 4 o'clock.

The Bandora Mining and Milling company of this city, which owns the Bandora group of mines on Mineral creek, near Silverton, has recently made a very rich strike. In a winze sunk about ten feet in the second level. This ore is a quartz liberally bespangled with flakes of pure metallic silver and in little bunches of wire. The company has in sight, on a competent computation, over $300,000 in gold and silver ore, and as the stock of the company is based on the strength of this alone, the new discoveries will tend to materially increase the value of the stock. The managers are now thinking of running in a new tunnel from a point 200 feet below the present workings, where they think they will strike the two veins where they join in a rich streak. Since the Colorado Springs people took hold of the mine they have made three shipments of both high and low grade ore, and the ore in each shipment has returned $130.50, $128.53 and $35.51 net a ton respectively. The property may not be a second Mollie Gibson, but its owners are very well satisfied with their purchase.

Card of Thanks.

We desire to express our sincere thanks to the many kind neighbors and friends who aided us during the sickness of my husband, though we know that words are of little avail at such a time, and that the ministering ones may over find as many willing and helping hands in their hours of trouble is the prayer of Mrs. S. A. Jackson And Family.

Manitou Springs.

The Pike's Peak carriage road has removed its office to the Continental hotel. Dr. H. M. Ogilbee will occupy their old office.

The water was all dipped from the Davis soda spring to-day in order to recover a fine silver watch that was dropped into it on Sunday.

The hotel men have averaged nearly as well during September as they did in July. It is the greatest fall for tourist travel that Manitou has ever known.

Mr. Edson Keith, Jr., who is the principal promotor of the Manitou casino project, is on a business trip to New York and nothing more will be done until his return.

Mr. Patrick Feeny died this morning of hemorrhages while sitting in a buggy in front of his house. Mr. Feeny was one of the early settlers of Manitou. He was a stone mason by trade and with his father he built the old signal station building on Pike's Peak. During the past few years the rise in real estate values had left him in independent circumstances and he erected the handsome white stone residence which stands near the east limits of the town. His decease was caused by inhaling small particles of fine dust while working at his trade, and its fatal outcome was only a matter of time.

A Parlor Match.

Eugene Field of the Chicago News has the following to say about the attraction at the opera house Friday and Saturday evenings: "This is the eleventh visit that Messrs. Evans and Hoey have paid to Chicago with their extravaganza, "A Parlor Match," yet the business they are doing is simply enormous. The piece they have played so long was written for them by Charles H. Hoyt, and is has outlived all Mr. Hoyt's other works. Why? In the first place the piece is a good one; it ingeniously admits of great latitude in the way of specialties, and this is an opportunity of which Evans and Hoey have most wisely availed themselves. Each time that "A Parlor Match" has come to us it has brought new business, and it is change that the public wants, after all. New features, new songs, new dances, new faces, new antics—these have been the successful tactics which Evans and Hoey have employed from the beginning of their career. But the real secret of their unabating popularity is the perennial individuality of the two men. They are very different, and together they make an incomparable team. We regard Mr. Hoey as the most original character in American comedy."

Mr. S. A. Jackson.

Rev. Ira G. Sprague was a life-long friend of the late S. A. Jackson, who died in this city on Saturday. He has written the following about him and it will be read with interest by all who were acquainted with the dead man:

Brother Silas A. Jackson was born in Ohio, March 11, 1819, and died at Colorado Springs, Sept. 26, 1891. He was therefore at the time of his decease aged 72 years, 6 months and 15 days. When a young man he united with an evangelical church, and in later years with the Congregational church at Pueblo. He came to Colorado in 1872 and located at Wigwam, about ten miles below Fountain, where he has lived since that time. For many years he has been actively engaged in religious work, and during the anti-slavery struggle was most earnest in his advocacy of the principles of freedom for all. He was no lover of cold formality in the service of his Master, but, with a heart always warm, he sought the society of those who entered heartily into the true spirit of Christian worship. He was a man of unblemished character and of great moral courage, beloved and respected by all who knew him. He died, as he lived, in full assurance of faith, in the belief that "to live is Christ, and to die is gain." He leaves, to mourn his loss, a faithful wife, six sons and three daughters, who have our sympathy and prayers. It was my privilege to visit Brother Jackson during his last sickness, and in response to the inquiry, "Is all well?" he said, "All is well!" May it be our happy experience to live as he lived, and to be sustained in the closing hours of life, by the same glorious hope. IRA G. SPRAGUE.

His Fortune.

Wealth and poverty are relative terms, as almost every one must have learned by his own experience. Many a man who now thinks twenty dollars a week pretty small wages can remember the time when he felt rich with half that sum.

A citizen of Westerly, R. I., says the historian of the town, enlisted as a privateer during one of the early wars of the country. It was perilous business, but patriotic feelings and visions of gold carried the day with him.

His cruise was long and eventful, but at last he returned home and received an appropriate welcome. As soon as the first greetings were over, his mother inquired:

"Well, Harry, how have you made out? Did you get much money?"

"Oh, yes, mother; good luck. I am rich. I shall have enough, with prudence in the care of it, to carry me through life, I hope."

"I am glad, my son; but how much did you get?"

"Well, I don't know exactly, but I think when we settle up I shall have as much as thirty dollars."

The treatment owls receive from man evinces no recognition of their value, no gratitude for their services. Large and small, they are shot wherever found, to serve as ornaments to the parlor or to do brief duty for a season on a fashionable hat, then to be cast aside and forgotten.

DIED.

FEENEY—At his residence in Manitou, Sept. 30, 1891, Patrick Feeney, aged 61 years.

Funeral at the Manitou Catholic church today at 2 p. m. Friends are invited.

NOTICE.

I shall be a candidate for Superintendent of Schools of El Paso county, at the approaching election, subject to the decision of the voters at the polls. My reasons for taking this step will be published later on.
